Senator J. D. Sullivan, charging that an emissary of a "masked organization" arrived in St. Paul yesterday to start a two year campaign "to abolish parochial schools" urged the senate to speed action on the bill. He gave the name of the emissary as G. F. Clark of Oregon.

The measure now goes to Governor Preus for his signature.

FRANCE SEEKS UNITY WITH BRITISH ON THE REPARATIONS TANGLE

(By United Press)

London, April 5.—France today sought agreement with Great Britain on the reparations question and an end of the Ruhr deadlock.

The French are understood to have made important concessions with a view to renewing the Franco-British entente.

Louis Locheur, leading industrialist of France, conferred with Premier Bonar Law for two hours. For two days he has been in secret conferences with Stanley Baldwin, acting premier in Bonar Law's absence from London. Locheur also spent the last week and with former Premier Lloyd George.

An important change in France's Ruhr and reparations policies is believed to have taken place.

It is reliably reported that Locheur and Baldwin reached a quasi-agreement regarding a compromise of French and British views.

EDUCATED WOMEN ADMIT "SPOONING" PRIOR TO MARRIAGE

New York, April 5.—The prevalence of "spooning" is shown in replies received by the bureau of social hygiene, founded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to a frank questionnaire circulated in what is termed the first exhaustive scientific investigation that has been made of the sex life of the normal educated woman.

A report prepared by Dr. Katherine Bement Davis, general secretary of the bureau, on replies received from 1,000 married women in various parts of the country, shows that 375 admitted having spooned prior to marriage with other than fiancés, 208 spooned with fiancés only and 389 never spooned prior to marriage. The question was left unanswered by 28.

Of the 1,000 married women, 872 proclaimed themselves happy. Of the happy group 41 per cent did not spoon, 37 per cent did and 22 per cent spooned only with their fiancés.

Included in the 1,000 married women with which Dr. Davis' report deals, 691 were college graduates, 47 college under-graduates, 41 high and normal school graduates, and 12 private school graduates.

A committee of 11 women well known for their work in the field of psychology co-operated with Dr. Davis. Care was taken to prevent the identity of those answering the eight page questionnaire from becoming known.

MRS. MINERVA OLSEN IN THE FOSTER TRIAL FAVORS ACQUITTAL

ACCORDING TO REPORTS IN SYNDICALIST CASE JURY EVENLY DIVIDED

SHE ARGUES WITH SEVERAL MEN JURORS, VOICE CARRIES TO CORRIDORS

(By United Press)

St. Joseph, Mich., April 5.—Mrs. Minerva Olsen, lone woman on the deadlocked jury deliberating the fate of William Z. Foster, was reported today to be leading the section favoring acquittal.

According to reports in the court room, the jury was still about evenly divided.

After spending the night at a local hotel, the eleven men and one woman renewed their battle over the decision early today.

Judge Charles E. White has given no indication of how long he will allow the jury to continue deliberations without reaching a verdict. However, it was considered probable that the court would not order a disagreement before Friday night in case a decision cannot be reached.

In the corridors, the loud voice of Mrs. Olsen arguing with several men, was frequently heard.

When the jury was brought into the court room after the night's rest, the woman's jaw was set and she had a determined look in her eye.

Foster, alleged communist charged with violation of the Michigan syndicalist law and Frank T. Walsh, his attorney, were greatly pleased over the prospects as hour after hour passed without a verdict being reported.

In case the jury disagrees, it is practically certain Foster will not be tried again. The state proposes to go ahead with the trial of Charles E. Ruthenberg, scheduled to start April 16th. The prosecutors declare they have a stronger case against Ruthenberg and other members of the communist party than against Foster, who denied membership in the organization.

Jury Hopelessly Deadlocked

St. Joseph, April 5.—The jury in the trial of William Z. Foster, alleged communist, was apparently hopelessly deadlocked this afternoon.

The eleven men and one woman will probably be kept locked up for another day in an effort to force them to reach a decision, Judge Charles White indicated.

During the noon luncheon, the jurors showed the strain they have been under since deliberations began at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Gossip in the court room was that the ballot stood six for acquittal and six for conviction.

FORFEITING BOND GROWS IN HABIT

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 4.—Judge James D. Elliott will decide today whether Ben I. Salingier, Jr., former vice-president of the defunct Midland packing company of Sioux City shall forfeit another big bond. The court desires more information as to how Salingier stands on returning here to face trial on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

The information yesterday was to the effect that Salingier was in Chicago and leaving for New York. Word came late yesterday that Salingier was taken into custody Tuesday morning in New Orleans. This information was received by U. S. District Attorney F. W. Clark.

Clark moved that the $15,000 bond be forfeited and that a fresh warrant be issued for his arrest. The court said more information was needed and announced a decision would be reached this afternoon.

"Salingier may seek to get another writ of habeas corpus but I intend to fight this on the grounds that he has already been unsuccessful in such methods in the state of New York," said District Attorney Clark.

RECENT JUMP IN SUGAR PRICES TODAY WAS CHARGED UP TO AMERICAN SUGAR REFINERS BY SENATOR SMOOT, UTAH

Washington, April 5.—The recent jump in sugar prices today was charged up to American sugar refiners by Senator Smoot, Utah, one of the framers of the present sugar tariff rates.

The senator asserted that the refiners have boosted prices in order to secure a reduction in the sugar tariff to destroy the American sugar industry and to regain profits lost in the slump of 1922.

LORD CARNARVON DIED OF BLOOD POISONING TODAY

SURROUNDED BY HIS FAMILY, DISCOVERER OF PHARAOH'S TOMB, BIDS FAREWELL

THEN DRIFTED INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS—SUPERSTITIOUS LEGENDS RECOUNTED

(By United Press)

Cairo, Egypt, April 5.—Surrounded by his family, the Earl of Carnarvon died peacefully here early today of blood poisoning sustained in excavations at the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamen which he discovered.

Lord Carnarvon, who had made a brave fight against the poison and against pneumonia which developed recently, sank rapidly after midnight. The Countess of Carnarvon, their daughter and Lord Porchester, the Earl's son and heir, were summoned hastily.

After bidding them farewell, Carnarvon drifted into unconsciousness and died at 2 o'clock.

SUPERSTITIOUS NATIVES SHAKE THEIR HEADS

Cairo, April 5.—Superstitious Egyptians shook dubious heads when word of the Earl's death spread. Among the natives it is whispered that the Gods that guard King Tutankhamen's catafalque cast an evil spell on the man who dared disturb the Pharaoh's rest. Others believe secret poisons were placed about the sarcophagus to ensnare intruders.

Friends of the explorer, whose discovery of Tutankhamen's tomb beneath tons of red sand in the wooded valley of the kings came as a culmination of seven years of search through the deserts, say Carnarvon was bitten by a noxious insect in the outer tomb of the ancient monarch. Blood poisoning developed and spread rapidly through his system. The old game hunter and traveler of many lands ably fought off the poisons, but pneumonia set in.

But the natives are convinced that death after lengthy suffering was Lord Carnarvon's portion because of violating the sanctity of Tutankhamen's tomb in which that once all-powerful Pharaoh had lain undisturbed for 3,500 years.

They point to the dramatic accidents in the Earl's family that occurred since the explorer's pick axes broke through into the inner tomb at Luxor.

The Earl's sudden illness; the sudden illness of his wife the countess as she was flying over France to his bedside in an airplane; a maid of the household stricken by appendicitis a day before the tomb was opened; Carnarvon's pet canary swallowed by a cobra; these were a few of the things they charged to vengeance of the Gods of Tutankhamen.

A plague of boils broke out in many parts of Europe the day the tomb was entered.

Lord Carnarvon was 56 years old. By his death his daughter-in-law, formerly Miss Catherine Wendell of New York, who married Lord Porchester last July, becomes the Countess of Carnarvon and joins the few American women of high rank in the British peerage.

SPIRITS GUARDED TOMB, SAYS CONAN DOYLE

New York, April 5.—Powerful "elementals" or spirits placed on guard by Egyptian priests to protect the tomb of Tutankhamen may have caused the death of Lord Carnarvon, discoverer of the Pharaoh's resting place, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle declared in an interview here today.

These "elementals" Sir Arthur, world's most noted exponent of spiritualism, explained are not spirits in the ordinary sense in that they are not souls. Conan Doyle believes the ancient Egyptians knew more of occult matters than do moderns, that priests of the days of Tutankhamen were endowed with power to create these guardian "elementals" seem well founded, he said.

A question, Sir Arthur said, is the length of time the "elementals" lasted. Whether Egyptian priests had sufficient occult knowledge to endow these spirits with eternal life is uncertain. The spiritualist is inclined to believe the elementals broke up after maintaining their guard for certain periods.

"The ancient Egyptians were very anxious to guard the tombs of their kings," Conan Doyle said.

"There is reason to believe that they placed 'elementals' on guard and such may have caused Lord Carnarvon's death."

Sir Arthur then cited other cases similar to that of Lord Carnarvon where death followed contact with Egyptian mummies.

The son of William Ingram, London publisher, met the same fate prescribed by a mummy he discovered and brought to London.

On the mummy was found the following inscription:

"May the life of the one who touches me die rapidly and may his bones never be buried."

Shortly afterward the son was killed in a hunting expedition in Somalia. The body was placed in a dry bed of a stream, pending removal. When the party returned the dry bed had become a raging torrent, and the body had disappeared.

Conan Doyle cited another case where persons who brought a mummy to a London museum, those who carried it to its case and others who came in contact with it died or were driven insane or were visited by other misfortunes. Other similar incidents have occurred recently he said, and in the aggregate they are conclusive evidence that the Egyptian priests had discovered the secret of giving life and form to guardian spirits, he argued.

There is little likelihood of the Tutankhamen and Lord Carnarvon meeting in another world because of the vast length of time between their deaths, Sir Arthur said.

GROCER WHO KILLED BANDITS IS 'TOO BUSY' TO RECEIVE MEDAL

Kansas City, Mo., April 5.—Mayor Frank Cronwell and Police Commissioner Oppenheimer were ready to bestow upon George B. McConkey, a grocer, a gold medal awarded by the Kansas City police department for meritorious service in the killing of two bandits. But the object of the bestowal was missing.

E. L. Winn, police board secretary, called on the telephone for McConkey. "I haven't time to come to police headquarters," the grocer said.

"But it is a gold medal, and the mayor and the chief and the commissioner wish to meet you," Winn said.

"Can't help that. I can't shut up the store."

A motorcycle patrolman carried the medal to McConkey.

AN INJECTION OF ADRENALIN INTO GLANDS OF HEART

EFFECTIVE SOMETIMES WITHIN 10 MINUTES, IF CAUSE OF DEATH IS REMOVED

DR. S. CRILE OF CHICAGO AND CLEVELAND ORIGINATED THE METHOD

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 5.—The dead can be made to live again by injection of adrenalin, an extract of the adrenal glands, into the heart within eight or ten minutes after death, providing the cause of death is removed, Dr. Denis W. Crile, Chicago, who with Dr. G. W. Crile, of Cleveland, originated the method, declared today, after successful experiments.

Dr. Crile in a report to the Chicago Medical Society and the Chicago Society of Anesthetists, said that the resuscitation method had been applied on persons pronounced dead and subjects are now living.

Inasmuch as removal of the cause of death is most essential, the injections are of greatest value in the operating room where patients die under anesthetic, Crile asserted.

Dr. Crile said so far he has used his treatment only on persons officially pronounced dead.

"Hereafter I propose to employ it upon persons who are dying," he stated. The method calls for large injections of the gland extract directly into the heart with a hypodermic needle.

"It can be used in cases other than death from anesthetic where the cause of death can be removed quickly," he continued.

Experiments have been conducted by the two doctors with adrenalin for several years, Dr. Denis Crile disclosed. First tests were made upon dogs and four years ago the first actual indications of success were obtained on humans. The first actual use, he said, was in Belgium where soldiers terribly wounded by shrapnel ceased breathing on the surgeon's table. The men were said to have been successfully revived.

Dr. Nelson M. Percy gave details of a case where a patient dying on the operating table was revived and lived for six hours after the treatment.

AN INJECTION OF ADRENALIN INTO GLANDS OF HEART

EFFECTIVE SOMETIMES WITHIN 10 MINUTES, IF CAUSE OF DEATH IS REMOVED

DR. CRILE OF CHICAGO AND CLEVELAND ORIGINATED THE METHOD

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 5.—The dead can be made to live again by injection of adrenalin, an extract of the adrenal glands, into the heart within eight or ten minutes after death, providing the cause of death is removed, Dr. Denis W. Crile, Chicago, who with Dr. G. W. Crile, of Cleveland, originated the method, declared today, after successful experiments.

Dr. Crile in a report to the Chicago Medical Society and the Chicago Society of Anaesthetists, said that the resuscitation method had been applied on persons pronounced dead and subjects are now living.

Inasmuch as removal of the cause of death is most essential, the injections are of greatest value in the operating room where patients die under anesthetic, Crile asserted.

Dr. Crile said so far he has used his treatment only on persons officially pronounced dead.

"Hereafter I propose to employ it upon persons who are dying," he stated. The method calls for large injections of the gland extract directly into the heart with a hypodermic needle.

"It can be used in cases other than death from anesthetic where the cause of death can be removed quickly," he continued.

Experiments have been conducted by the two doctors with adrenalin for several years. Dr. Denis Crile disclosed. First tests were made upon dogs and four years ago the first actual indications of success were obtained on humans. The first actual use, he said, was in Belgium where soldiers terribly wounded by shrapnel ceased breathing on the surgeon's table. The men were said to have been successfully revived.

Dr. Nelson M. Percy gave details of a case where a patient dying on the operating table was revived and lived for six hours after the treatment.

(By United Press)

Paris, Ill., April 5.—The northeast section of the business district of Paris and several residences were destroyed by fire believed incendiary last night and early today at a loss of more than $200,000.

Fire apparatus was summoned from nearby cities after the flames broke out in three places at about the same time and spread before a forty mile gale.

Two men reported by citizens to have been seen running from the Witt feed store where the blaze originated, were responsible for the incendiary theory held by authorities.

Brainerd Business Women's Club Attends to Civic Duty First, Then Has Club Meeting

A novel idea advanced by Brainerd business women it to buy the old court house, using the lower floor for a garment factory and the second floor for club rooms.

A man's organization could not get a handful out to a meeting on election night. Yet a goodly number of the Business & Professional Women's club gathered Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Brainerd Civic and Commerce Association for the regular monthly meeting of the club. The first question asked by the president was: "Is there anyone here who has not voted?" All had evidently done their duty earlier in the day.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, and the report of the treasurer, a number of bills were allowed. Amy Erickson, chairman of the house committee, and her assistants, were commended for the splendid work done in the club rooms. "Paint, sister, paint—paint with care" seems to have been their motto. Cupboard, shelves, radiator cases, etc., all have received a generous coating of stain and varnish.

A letter from Viola B. White, of the University of Wisconsin, was read during the meeting. Miss White is collecting statistics regarding the Home Economics programs of the different clubs. Abby Marshall, director of the course at the U. of W. says: "The central thought in all of the work of home economics is the developing of the profession of home making as the basis of all advances in human progress."

Miss McColl took this opportunity for telling of a club member in Seattle, who in addition to being treasurer of a club of 700 members, and incidentally bookkeeper of a large laundry, won the prize for the best doughnuts, in competition with hundreds of other women. Business women (at least some of them) can cook as well as bookkeep! A recipe for these doughnuts is printed in the last issue of the Independent Woman magazine.

Information received from Sophie Witte, deputy clerk of court for Crow Wing county, reveals the sad fact, that the marriage license business is lagging. This was brought to the attention of the members. But 21 licenses have been issued since the first of the year. Food for thought, indeed. And not only thought, but action!

Miss Lorette Newman, secretary of the Child Welfare Board, gave an interesting outline of programs given by a club of which she was a member. The president called attention to a letter published recently in the Brainerd Dispatch, suggesting the desirability of a factory being established here for the purpose of making women's house dresses and aprons and children's clothes. This is a matter that might very well be taken up by a woman's organization and in the discussion following a suitable site was one of the first things mentioned. Miss McColl said that she and the former president, Miss Engsborg, used to dream of the club purchasing the old court house and making it into quarters for the club. The suggestion was made that this be done now and the lower floor be reserved for the use of the coming factory. All seemed favorably impressed with the idea. A special committee will be appointed to provide ways and means of making this big dream come true. The idea had met with approval of business men and women.

Dorothy Smith reported completion of plans for the supper and sale on Saturday April 7th. A capable committee is assisting Miss Smith. The captains and colonels of the ticket selling force will meet some time this week to perfect plans for a "whirlwind" finish to their campaign. The force will be divided into two bombarding teams, the Dynamites and the T. N. T's. Genevieve McCabe will head one team and May Hurley the other. The "Female of the Species," let loose under such explosive titles, will surely prove deadly to all those who failed to purchase tickets for the big movie benefit. The picture is "White Shoulders" a Katherine MacDonald feature picture, and a one act play, "In 1999," with well known Brainerd girls portraying the different roles.

THEY ALL VOTED

Brainerd Business Women's Club Attends to Civic Duty First, Then Has Club Meeting

A novel idea advanced by Brainerd business women it to buy the old court house, using the lower floor for a garment factory and the second floor for club rooms.

A man's organization could not get a handful out to a meeting on election night. Yet a goodly number of the Business & Professional Women's club gathered Tuesday evening at the rooms of the Brainerd Civic and Commerce Association for the regular monthly meeting of the club. The first question asked by the president was: "Is there anyone here who has not voted?" All had evidently done their duty earlier in the day.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, and the report of the treasurer, a number of bills were allowed. Amy Erickson, chairman of the house committee, and her assistants, were commended for the splendid work done in the club rooms. "Paint, sister, paint—paint with care" seems to have been their motto. Cupboard, shelves, radiator cases, etc., all have received a generous coating of stain and varnish.

A letter from Viola B. White, of the University of Wisconsin, was read during the meeting. Miss White is collecting statistics regarding the Home Economics programs of the different clubs. Abby Marshall, director of the course at the U. of W. says: "The central thought in all of the work of home economics is the developing of the profession of home making as the basis of all advances in human progress."

Miss McColl took this opportunity for telling of a club member in Seattle, who in addition to being treasurer of a club of 700 members, and incidentally bookkeeper of a large laundry, won the prize for the best doughnuts, in competition with hundreds of other women. Business women (at least some of them) can cook as well as bookkeep! A recipe for these doughnuts is printed in the last issue of the Independent Woman magazine.

Information received from Sophie Witte, deputy clerk of court for Crow Wing county, reveals the sad fact, that the marriage license business is lagging. This was brought to the attention of the members. But 21 licenses have been issued since the first of the year. Food for thought, indeed. And not only thought, but action!

Miss Lorette Newman, secretary of the Child Welfare Board, gave an interesting outline of programs given by a club of which she was a member. The president called attention to a letter published recently in the Brainerd Dispatch, suggesting the desirability of a factory being established here for the purpose of making women's house dresses and aprons and children's clothes. This is a matter that might very well be taken up by a woman's organization and in the discussion following a suitable site was one of the first things mentioned. Miss McColl said that she and the former president, Miss Engsborg, used to dream of the club purchasing the old court house and making it into quarters for the club. The suggestion was made that this be done now and the lower floor be reserved for the use of the coming factory. All seemed favorably impressed with the idea. A special committee will be appointed to provide ways and means of making this big dream come true. The idea had met with approval of business men and women.

Dorothy Smith reported completion of plans for the supper and sale on Saturday April 7th. A capable committee is assisting Miss Smith. The captains and colonels of the ticket selling force will meet some time this week to perfect plans for a "whirlwind" finish to their campaign. The force will be divided into two bombarding teams, the Dynamites and the T. N. T's. Genevieve McCabe will head one team and May Hurley the other. The "Female of the Species," let loose under such explosive titles, will surely prove deadly to all those who failed to purchase tickets for the big movie benefit. The picture is "White Shoulders," a Katherine MacDonald feature picture, and a one act play, "In 1999," with well known Brainerd girls portraying the different roles.

AN ERA OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY

Now that the election is over, Brainerd may look forward to an era of peace and prosperity. It was to be expected that the election campaign would be marked by unusual vigor. The unfortunate reactions that must forever follow an industrial disturbance were manifest during the days preceding the election and were registered at the polling booths.

All of this is now in the past. The votes have been counted and Con O'Brien is mayor of the city of Brainerd. As such, he will be recognized and supported by the citizens of Brainerd irrespective of whether they voted for or against him. The majority of the citizens of Brainerd have elected Mr. O'Brien and the majority governs in the United States.

If the citizens of Brainerd forget the things that lie behind and cooperate with the newly elected officials in seeking a "bigger and better Brainerd" this hope will be realized. There is no reason to suppose that anything phenomenal is about to happen to our fair city. We might wish that some wizard like Henry Ford would come in and make it the center of smelting operations, but while such things happen to some cities, sometimes, they do not happen often.

The inference that is to be drawn from certain suggestions, that are made as to the possibility of the city's expansion, is that those who make such suggestions conclude that Brainerd must keep on multiplying her retail stores, thereby building up a larger city. Such upbuilding is not really of any serious consequence to Brainerd. Our institutions of this kind are qualified to take care of the business of our trade territory, and some lines are probably already overdone.

Brainerd can rest assured that anything that promises expansion for the city will be encouraged by the mayor of Brainerd whose business interests and civic pride will guarantee that his attention will always be directed to the end that the city may know a larger prosperity.

Brainerd may rest assured that the officials elected this week will endeavor to discharge the duties that fall upon them in their several offices, with the interests of the city before them at all times. If they are given the loyal support and cooperation of our citizenship, Brainerd is likely to have the satisfaction of sharing the prosperity that is becoming general throughout the United States. Well located geographically, with large developments in the Twin Cities that are likely to result in advertising our state, with splendid agricultural possibilities around us which the use of marl will help to develop, with the railroad shops already here and the probability that they will be enlarged, Brainerd is destined to know a splendid development. And if a growth of civic spirit features the era upon which we are entering the future of Brainerd is bright with promise.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

LORD ROBERT CECIL, in his speech in New York, showed that he is aiming at encouraging a study of the possibilities of international organization rather than at attempting to influence the decision of the American people by fiery and fervid oration.

This able Englishman, whose idealism has impressed the people of his own country, proved that he had not come over here to tell the people of the United States that it is their duty to accept the League of Nations just as it is because many other nations have already accepted it. He declared that "he believed the covenant of the league now operating was adequate, but that if America would devise a better plan, or suggest alterations in the organization of the present league, he would favor them."

The speaker expressed the thought that nations can only be guaranteed against aggression from outside by an association of nations and that, if a nation is forced to defend itself against an aggressor, it will call in all of the instruments of war in its defense, however deadly these may be, and despite the fact that they may have been outlawed by agreements arrived at in such a conference as that held at Washington. The prevention of war is the last hope of peoples who would be annihilated by the weapons employed in modern warfare. If the nations arrive at decisions in an international court of justice, and stand together against any nation that refuses to obey the rulings of the court, that nation would not dare to take up arms against the world.

As to the obligations that would follow upon entrance into such an association, much has been said, but it is becoming increasingly clear that no nation can build a wall around itself and remain immune from the encroachments of the larger world. Because this is so, America cannot be assured, that in case of another war in Europe, this country would be able to avoid participating in the conflict, and entrance into an association of nations, while it would carry certain obligations with it, would be as nothing compared with the cost of participation in a world war.

General Tasker H. Bliss has adopted as his creed the words of the great French scientist: "I believe with unshakable faith that science and peace will yet triumph over ignorance and war, and that the peoples of the world will seek knowledge, not to destroy but to create."

This must be, because the world's best conscience and heart demands it, but conscience and heart cannot bring it about by themselves, it can come only by participation. Ideals without organization are pretty and impressive but they are not realized.

MAKING CHARGES AND SUSTAINING THEM

THE acquittal of A. C. Jensen, superintendent of the police department of Minneapolis, was expected by those who have been brought into touch with police departments and have learned from experience that the achievements of the police are limited by very many things that prevent the doing of what critics wish to have done.

To say that the chief of police has deliberately neglected his duty because all of the crime in a city is not suppressed is going too far. It is highly probable that the citizens have much more to do with such conditions than the police department. When citizens are alert and are ready to present evidence and appear in court as witnesses criminals are very uncomfortable. But it often happens that those who are loudest in their criticism of the department are the least willing to appear in court as witnesses against those whom they know to be breaking the law.

The charges preferred against Chief of Police Jensen arose out of the finding of gambling, which it is claimed was carried on openly in the city. If the evidence submitted leads to the people of Minneapolis bestirring themselves, if it creates a strong sentiment against open gambling, juries will be ready to convict instead of acquitting those who are arrested and brought into court.

The strength of a police department is the public sentiment that is behind it and, in putting Chief Jensen on trial, Minneapolis really went on trial itself. If the city pronounces itself guilty and determines that gambling must be suppressed because nothing good comes out of congregating in gambling halls, as nothing good originated in the open saloon, the chief of police will have a much more satisfactory record to show at the end of another year.

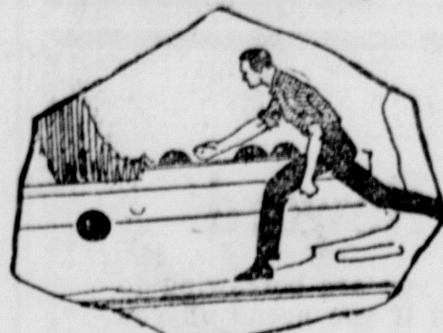

THE wave of prosperity is swinging the voters back into the republican party. Michigan voters have not given the democrats any encouragement in the election this week. An ounce of prosperity is worth a ton of propaganda to the party in power.

AT Sault Ste. Marie, citizens are conducting a snow shoveling bee, while Northern Minnesota rejoices in the springtime. Minnesotans are sympathetic, however; they know what winter means.

CHICAGO'S election was lively, as might be expected at the end of the Thompson regime. Whatever the city gets, it can be thankful for, after what it has had.

THE pre-primary law in this state died in its infancy after a brief life of two years. It never was a very healthy child.

MINNESOTA LAKE PROPERTIES, INC.

St. Paul, April 5.—Former Senator P. H. McGarry of Walker, who retired several months ago as president of the Ten Thousand Lakes of Minnesota association, heads a new organization, the Minnesota Lake Properties, Inc., which will deal exclusively in selected lake shore and island properties in Minnesota and Wisconsin to meet the demands of this region's growing summer population.

Minnesota and Illinois business men are promoting the enterprise, which has opened general headquarters in the Ryan hotel, St. Paul, and has begun to function. Branch offices will be established this week in Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka and Omaha. Sales management will be directed by Harrison Hatton of St. Paul and M. M. Buckman of Minneapolis, who have already taken charge.

Negotiations are under way for the sale of 3,000 feet of shore line on a Minnesota lake to a group of Chicago men who will establish a new summer colony in Minnesota, and the deal is virtually completed. Mr. McGarry announced Sunday. The Minnesota Lake Properties, Inc., now has under its control more than 100 lake shore and island properties in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin.

AN ERA OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY

Now that the election is over, Brainerd may look forward to an era of peace and prosperity. It was to be expected that the election campaign would be marked by unusual vigor. The unfortunate reactions that must forever follow an industrial disturbance were manifest during the days preceding the election and were registered at the polling booths.

All of this is now in the past. The votes have been counted and Con O'Brien is mayor of the city of Brainerd. As such, he will be recognized and supported by the citizens of Brainerd irrespective of whether they voted for or against him. The majority of the citizens of Brainerd have elected Mr. O'Brien and the majority governs in the United States.

If the citizens of Brainerd forget the things that lie behind and cooperate with the newly elected officials in seeking a "bigger and better Brainerd" this hope will be realized. There is no reason to suppose that anything phenomenal is about to happen to our fair city. We might wish that some wizard like Henry Ford would come in and make it the center of smelting operations, but while such things happen to some cities, sometimes, they do not happen often.

The inference that is to be drawn from certain suggestions, that are made as to the possibility of the city's expansion, is that those who make such suggestions conclude that Brainerd must keep on multiplying her retail stores, thereby building up a larger city. Such upbuilding is not really of any serious consequence to Brainerd. Our institutions of this kind are qualified to take care of the business of our trade territory, and some lines are probably already overdone.

Brainerd can rest assured that anything that promises expansion for the city will be encouraged by the mayor of Brainerd whose business interests and civic pride will guarantee that his attention will always be directed to the end that the city may know a larger prosperity.

Brainerd may rest assured that the officials elected this week will endeavor to discharge the duties that fall upon them in their several offices, with the interests of the city before them at all times. If they are given the loyal support and cooperation of our citizenship, Brainerd is likely to have the satisfaction of sharing the prosperity that is becoming general throughout the United States. Well located geographically, with large developments in the Twin Cities that are likely to result in advertising our state, with splendid agricultural possibilities around us which the use of marl will help to develop, with the railroad shops already here and the probability that they will be enlarged, Brainerd is destined to know a splendid development. And if a growth of civic spirit features the era upon which we are entering the future of Brainerd is bright with promise.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

LORD ROBERT CECIL, in his speech in New York, showed that he is aiming at encouraging a study of the possibilities of international organization rather than at attempting to influence the decision of the American people by fiery and fervid oration.

This able Englishman, whose idealism has impressed the people of his own country, proved that he had not come over here to tell the people of the United States that it is their duty to accept the League of Nations just as it is because many other nations have already accepted it. He declared that "he believed the covenant of the league now operating was adequate, but that if America would devise a better plan, or suggest alterations in the organization of the present league, he would favor them."

The speaker expressed the thought that nations can only be guaranteed against aggression from outside by an association of nations and that, if a nation is forced to defend itself against an aggressor, it will call in all of the instruments of war in its defense, however deadly these may be, and despite the fact that they may have been outlawed by agreements arrived at in such a conference as that held at Washington. The prevention of war is the last hope of peoples who would be annihilated by the weapons employed in modern warfare. If the nations arrive at decisions in an international court of justice, and stand together against any nation that refuses to obey the rulings of the court, that nation would not dare to take up arms against the world.

As to the obligations that would follow upon entrance into such an association, much has been said, but it is becoming increasingly clear that no nation can build a wall around itself and remain immune from the encroachments of the larger world. Because this is so, America cannot be assured, that in case of another war in Europe, this country would be able to avoid participating in the conflict, and entrance into an association of nations, while it would carry certain obligations with it, would be as nothing compared with the cost of participation in a world war.

General Tasker H. Bliss has adopted as his creed the words of the great French scientist: "I believe with unshakable faith that science and peace will yet triumph over ignorance and war, and that the peoples of the world will seek knowledge, not to destroy but to create."

This must be, because the world's best conscience and heart demands it, but conscience and heart cannot bring it about by aloofness, it can come only by participation. Ideals without organization are pretty and impressive but they are not realized.

MAKING CHARGES AND SUSTAINING THEM

THE acquittal of A. C. Jensen, superintendent of the police department of Minneapolis, was expected by those who have been brought into touch with police departments and have learned from experience that the achievements of the police are limited by very many things that prevent the doing of what critics wish to have done.

To say that the chief of police has deliberately neglected his duty because all of the crime in a city is not suppressed is going too far. It is highly probable that the citizens have much more to do with such conditions than the police department. When citizens are alert and are ready to present evidence and appear in court as witnesses criminals are very uncomfortable. But it often happens that those who are loudest in their criticism of the department are the least willing to appear in court as witnesses against those whom they know to be breaking the law.

The charges preferred against Chief of Police Jensen arose out of the finding of gambling, which it is claimed was carried on openly in the city. If the evidence submitted leads to the people of Minneapolis bestirring themselves, if it creates a strong sentiment against open gambling, juries will be ready to convict instead of acquitting those who are arrested and brought into court.

The strength of a police department is the public sentiment that is behind it and, in putting Chief Jensen on trial, Minneapolis really went on trial itself. If the city pronounces itself guilty and determines that gambling must be suppressed because nothing good comes out of congregating in gambling halls, as nothing good originated in the open saloon, the chief of police will have a much more satisfactory record to show at the end of another year.

THE wave of prosperity is swinging the voters back into the republican party. Michigan voters have not given the democrats any encouragement in the election this week. An ounce of prosperity is worth a ton of propaganda to the party in power.

AT Sault Ste. Marie, citizens are conducting a snow shoveling bee, while Northern Minnesota rejoices in the springtime. Minnesotans are sympathetic, however; they know what winter means.

CHICAGO's election was lively, as might be expected at the end of the Thompson regime. Whatever the city gets, it can be thankful for, after what it has had.

THE pre-primary law in this state died in its infancy after a brief life of two years. It never was a very healthy child.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL IN BRAINERD SOON

Subject Given Lengthy Consideration at Saturday and Monday Meetings

AT BOARD OF EDUCATION

Contract to be Signed if Suitable Instructor Can be Secured Under Terms of Contract

A. M. Pease, representative of the U. S. Veterans Bureau, appeared before the officers of the board of education on Saturday, asking that the matter of establishing a Veterans Vocational school be considered by the board.

This subject was given a lengthy discussion at the regular monthly meeting on Monday night, with the view of giving it immediate consideration and action.

Mr. Pease stated that he would forward contract blanks for the signatures of the officers of the board to sign should the matter be favorably acted upon, but these blanks failed to arrive in time for the meeting on Monday.

After considering the proposition for nearly two hours the following motion was passed: "That the officers be directed to sign the contract with the U. S. Veterans Bureau, provided a suitable instructor can be secured under terms of the contract without financial loss to the school district."

This contract expires June 30th of this year, which is the end of the Bureau's fiscal year, and at which time a new contract must be drawn up.

The board understands that there are three or four "Trainees" in the county at the present time, veterans who are in line for the Government training. In addition there are about two hundred of these men to be placed in the six or seven different districts in Minnesota.

The plan, as explained by Mr. Pease, is that these trainees are to be taken around in groups of from twenty to twenty-five, to look over the field and make their own selections as to where they wish to be trained. In this way the Brainerd district would be supplied with the others.

The government pays the board of education for training these men on the basis of a sliding scale, depending on the number of men in school. For example, if there are ten trainees or less taking training, $35 per man per month is paid to the board. The rate for eleven to twenty six men is $30 per month per man, and above twenty-six, $25 per man per month is paid.

Out of this money the board must pay the instructor's salary, his transportation, and school rooms when necessary, although in the summer months, all of the instruction is given right in the field. Added compensation is allowed by the government for text-books and supplies, although office room must be furnished for the instructor's use.

A communication was received by the board at its Monday meeting from J. M. McConnell, state commissioner of education, setting forth the various courses of study to be taught in both grade and high school, and asking the co-operation of all school boards and superintendents in applying these courses. The letter was accepted and ordered placed on file.

Superintendent Cobb submitted his monthly report on the condition of the book room for March, and this was accepted and ordered filed.

The fuel committee reported on the purchase of two cars of coal, one from Turcotte Brothers, the other from the Lakeside Lumber Co., these firms submitting the same figures in their bids to the committee.

The building committee reported having finished the work of remodeling the basement of the Harrison building and transforming a part of it into a class room, as instructed to do at the last meeting of the board. This room is now being used for school purpose, a kindergarten having been installed under the direction and in charge of Miss Jennie Hedin, for the balance of the year.

The finance committee reported that it had checked the books of the treasurer for the quarter ending January 31st, together with the report of the sinking fund for the period, and found both correct to the best of their knowledge.

President LaBar reported that all matter pertaining to the retirement of the $5,000 bond issue maturing April 1st, 1923, and the refunding of $35,000 bond issue maturing on the same date, had all been taken care of in the proper manner.

The payrolls of the superintendent, officers of the board, school and city nurse, trust officer and janitors, amounting to $1,190 were allowed, and warrants ordered drawn for that purpose.

Routine bills, which were passed by the finance committee, were ordered paid. All members of the board were present with the exception of Fred Drexler and Mrs. A. H. Anderson.

"PYRAMUS" AND "JACK"

Public to See Double Header Program at New Park Theatre Monday, April 9th

Next Monday night the public has the opportunity of seeing a double header program at the New Park theatre when the grades will present "Jack and the Beanstalk", and the high school people "Pyramus and Thisbe."

This serio-comic story of Pyramus and Thisbe has delighted audiences for three centuries in every country where English is spoken. It has been translated into foreign tongues and been performed in many lands. For as many years to come people will chuckle and applaud.

Know you that a certain group of Athenian laborers get "stage struck" and perform a play for the Duke Theseus and his court. The play is a two act affair, where amusing situations follow each other in rapid succession. It is a burlesque, pure and simple, a laugh producer unequalled. Across the stage struts Bottom, who is absolutely certain that there is nothing he cannot do better than the next fellow, no role he cannot perform. He is the tempestuous lover in the sad tales of Pyramus and Thisbe, and talks through the wall to his fair lady, Thisbe, who is no other than George Orth, who steals out for a clandestine meeting with her lover. In this tragic love affair come other people, a wall that separates the ardent pair, a moon that shines down upon their love. This wall is Charles Hoffman, and the brilliant moon is Lloyd Jones, a most shining moon. The terrible lion that frightens poor Thisbe is Ralph Hebert, a most horrible beast that roars.

This story is introduced by the prolog, in the person of Arthur Johnston, and is performed before the court, Duke Theseus, Lyle Northrup and this fair bride Hippolyta, Lucille Nolan, with Demetrius and Helena, Virgil Quansstrom and Helen Buscher, comprise the audience. The affair is managed by Ralph Lindberg in the person of Philostrate. It is a most enjoyable comedy.

Tickets are on sale by high school students and at Dunn's drug store, and will be reserved at the New Park theatre Friday at 4 o'clock. Previous experience has demonstrated that tickets go too fast, so get them now.

"PYRAMUS" AND "JACK"

Public to See Double Header Program at New Park Theatre Monday, April 9th

Next Monday night the public has the opportunity of seeing a double header program at the New Park theatre when the grades will present "Jack and the Beanstalk", and the high school people "Pyramus and Thisbe."

This serio-comic story of Pyramus and Thisbe has delighted audiences for three centuries in every country where English is spoken. It has been translated into foreign tongues and been performed in many lands. For as many years to come people will chuckle and applaud.

Know you that a certain group of Athenian laborers get "stage struck" and perform a play for the Duke Theseus and his court. The play is a two act affair, where amusing situations follow each other in rapid succession. It is a burlesque, pure and simple, a laugh producer unequalled. Across the stage struts Bottom, who is absolutely certain that there is nothing he cannot do better than the next fellow, no role he cannot perform. He is the tempestuous lover in the sad tales of Pyramus and Thisbe, and talks through the wall to his fair lady, Thisbe, who is no other than George Orth, who steals out for a clandestine meeting with her lover. In this tragic love affair come other people, a wall that separates the ardent pair, a moon that shines down upon their love. This wall is Charles Hoffman, and the brilliant moon is Lloyd Jones, a most shining moon. The terrible lion that frightens poor Thisbe is Ralph Hebert, a most horrible beast that roars.

This story is introduced by the prolog, in the person of Arthur Johnston, and is performed before the court, Duke Theseus, Lyle Northrup an dhis fair bride Hippolyta, Lucille Nolan, with Demetrius and Helena, Virgil Quastrom and Helen Buscher, comprise the audience. The affair is managed by Ralph Lindberg in the person of Philostrate. It is a most enjoyable comedy.

Tickets are on sale by high school students and at Dunn's drug store, and will be reserved at the New Park theatre Friday at 4 o'clock. Previous experience has demonstrated that tickets go too fast, so get them now.

DON'T WANT FIRPO TO GET CLEVER

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, April 5.—When he learns how to box and gets so he can move around, Luis Angel Firpo will be a great heavyweight, the verdict read after the jury of experts had seen the giant South American club Bill Brennan to the mat with a wild swing of a cave-man.

"Let him get clever before he talks about Dempsey. No swinging will do good without boxing," said all of them but Jimmy De Forest.

Jimmy, wise old veteran of the ring and the best teacher in the country, is handling Firpo and trying to do what he did with Dempsey, whom he took in the rough, a green, wild swinger, and made him champion of the world.

"There's one thing I don't want him to do, and that's get clever. He doesn't need it. All he needs to learn is to hit straight and use his left hand and he'll be there. A man who can take a punch like he can and hit like he can doesn't need any cleverness," De Forest says.

Jimmy also figures that Firpo is too heavy and that he can do his best work at about 215 pounds. He weighed 235 when he came up from South America, and De Forest had to work ten pounds off him before he went against Brennan.

Firpo is being advised too well now to be led into a match with Jack Dempsey or Tom Gibbons. Against a rather slow opponent, like Brennan, or a light fighter, like Ropes, Firpo is perfectly able now to hold his own. He would be almost sure to be knocked out, however, if he opposed a good boxer, fast-moving, double-handed puncher like Dempsey or Gibbons. The South American also has to get in better condition. He was weary from his own exertions several times in his fight against Brennan, and until he removes some of the flabbiness around his belt he will be in danger whenever he goes against a hard body puncher.

WHY PLAY GOLF?

First of all, golf is the greatest out-door game for all ages or degrees of strength.

The very best time to begin it is in early youth, because the greatest necessity for good golf is suppleness of muscular action.

"Form" is one of the great desires in golfing, and that can best be acquired when young and responsive. So, having learned the game in youth, it will maintain its interest all through life. This is not true of most games. Many of them have to be dropped for one reason or another.

Health-Building Exercise

Golf compels the player to spend the time devoted to it in the open, and in wholesome activity. It is not violent or strenuous, but gives play to all members of the body. Eighteen holes of golf, with its various movements back and forth, will represent more than three miles of walking. That in itself, will not seem like much exercise, but when you couple that with the striking, swinging, stooping, etc., incidental to the game, you will find that you have done a good piece of physical work. The healthfulness of it must be obvious.

Keeps You Young

The "fountain of eternal youth" is to be found in constant association with the young. Their vigor and energy will serve as a charming spur as the years approach when our own inclination is to join the ranks of the inactive and onlookers. There are not many athletic games open to the man whose face is "toward the setting sun."

Golf is a game in which very young and very old can find mutual and equal pleasure pitted one against the other.

Broadens Your Friendship

It is a game that forces the player into association with his fellows. The golfer will inevitably find his circle of acquaintance widening, until he will be amazed to count the number of most desirable people he will include in his list of intimate friends. There is an intimacy growing out of the fellowship of golf that is not engendered by any other game.

Entree Into Influential Circles

The most influential and worthwhile people, from any standpoint, are today playing golf. Any attempt to force an entree into those circles would be considered bad form and would be repelled.

But, ability to play the same game more than ordinarily well will serve as an introduction to circles that will enrich all your future. For that reason, it commends itself to young and old.

Young golfers will win his way into notice of persons of power to benefit him in countless ways. The advanced in years will be mingling with the virile, progressive, oncoming young element, with its consequent opportunity for observation at close quarters. Many a problem of the personnel of a business organization has been solved during a game of golf.

Municipal Golf

Dwellers in towns and cities are coming, more and more each year, to demand in return for their tax dollar something more than the ordinary old time service. During the first twenty-five years of golf in this country, the game was necessarily confined to the narrow circles of the well-to-do. This was due to the need for large acreage in which to play the game.

Now, the great body of persons of moderate means, and less, have tasted this same elixir, and are demanding to be satisfied. Cities and small towns, have found it easily possible to establish golf courses in park areas already owned, or to acquire tracts adapted to the purpose.

Here wage earners, clerks in stores, office people, and whoever will, can play the greatest of all games at very little expense. Many cities report that these courses are not only self supporting but return some surplus to the treasury.

Factory Esprit Du Corps

The executives of many industrial establishments are recognizing the value of recreation facilities, made possible for their employees through their own organization. Many factories maintain baseball, foot ball, basket ball, bowling, or other kinds of teams, but in those games only the few can play, while the vast majority are simply onlookers.

Golf courses, maintained as a factory adjunct, afford an opportunity for all to play, not only men and boys, but that large class of women helpers, as well. This brings about contests within the organization, even between executives and the rank and file.

The result is an unconscious breaking down of that dangerous class enimity and strife, and a discovery of virtues and traits in "the other fellow" that were not dreamed of before. Such a condition, you will agree, is priceless.

Public School Golf Leagues

The existence of public, municipal courses has led now to the formation of golf leagues among the pupils of the public schools. In any given school not more than twenty-five or thirty of the most vigorous can compete for football honors, or in base ball, basketball, or any of the other school games. In golf, it can easily be that the most delicate boy or girl will develop championship skill and be able to represent his school in the inter-school games.

The game is possible and beneficial for every boy or girl of school age, and will develop and unfold into added enjoyment after the school life has become only a memory. It is a life-long game.

AMUSEMENTS

Gimme! Gimme! Gimme! Have You Got Them?

Rupert Hughes, the man who has made motion pictures human—made them reflect real human beings acting as naturally as your own family and your next door neighbors—goes blithely on his way of interpreting modern American life to picturegoers. What could be more home-like, modern and American in subject than the financial dependence of a great majority of American women upon their husbands, even for pocket money, and the never-ending stream of "gimmies" to which the husbands who do not give their wives allowances must listen?

Rupert Hughes has dramatized the comedy and drama of these millions of American wives in his latest Goldwyn picture entitled, by genuine inspiration, "Gimme," which was shown for the first time at the Lyceum yesterday and will be repeated again tonight.

MAE MURRAY

In "Fascination" at the Park on Saturday and Sunday.

King Tut's History Revealed in "Loves of Pharaoh" at Lyceum
Ernest Lubitch, the famous European motion picture producer has a way of making you want to read the encyclopedia and books on history. Whenever his massive picture, "Passion," was shown, librarians report a big demand for books on the French revolution.

"Deception" made more people take an interest in Henry the Eighth and Ann Boleyn than any other single work since those two worthies passed into history.

Now this European Griffith has produced as his most massive picture a spectacular romance of ancient Egypt and librarians are expecting calls for informative and entertaining reading matter about the land of King Tut and the sphinx.

"The Loves of Pharaoh," which comes to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday is described as his most magnificent picture.

The costumes worn by Dorothy Mackall in the Edwin Carowe First National release, "Mighty Lak' a Rose," at the New Park last time tonight, afford striking contrast. From the poorest and shabbiest of little dresses to the most exquisite gowns is the order. In the first scenes of the picture she appears garbed as a little orphan girl in the dun colored frocks of a nondescript character and skimpily as to material. These frocks were carefully planned and made by Dorothy and her mother, thus giving a home-made appearance that could not be found in the cheapest ready-made dresses.

Gorgeous apple green charmuse worn by Dorothy later in the picture, reveals the real beauty of the actress. Elaborately filigreed with silver and crystal and caught over the right shoulder with a wreath of delicately hued silk flowers, it is a tribute to the dressmaking art. It is of the regal type of gown most popular during the days of Queen Elizabeth, yet in the execution of detail it strikes a strictly modern note. With this gown Dorothy wears silver evening slippers. The green material matches the artist's eyes and enhances their depth. With her hair worn high and a $30,000 evening cape of chinchilla, Dorothy is as entrancing to the eye as a gorgeous butterfly just emerged from a drab cocoon.

Their vigor and energy will serve as a charming spur as the years approach when our own inclination is to join the ranks of the inactive and onlookers. There are not many athletic games open to the man whose face is "toward the setting sun."

Golf is a game in which very young and very old can find mutual and equal pleasure pitted one against the other.

Broadens Your Friendship

It is a game that forces the player into association with his fellows. The golfer will inevitably find his circle of acquaintance widening, until he will be amazed to count the number of most desirable people he will include in his list of intimate friends. There is an intimacy growing out of the fellowship of golf that is not engendered by any other game.

Entree Into Influential Circles

The most influential and worthwhile people, from any standpoint, are today playing golf. Any attempt to force an entree into those circles would be considered bad form and would be repelled.

But, ability to play the same game more than ordinarily well will serve as an introduction to circles that will enrich all your future. For that reason, it commands itself to young and old.

Young golfers will win his way into notice of persons of power to benefit him in countless ways. The advanced in years will be mingling with the virile, progressive, oncoming young element, with its consequent opportunity for observation at mity and strife, and a discovery of virtues and traits in "the other fellow" that were not dreamed of before. Such a condition, you will agree, is priceless.

Public School Golf Leagues

The existence of public, municipal courses has led now to the formation of golf leagues among the pupils of the public schools. In any given school not more than twenty-five or thirty of the most vigorous can compete for football honors, or in base ball, basketball, or any of the other school games. In golf, it can easily be that the most delicate boy or girl will develop championship skill and be able to represent his school in the inter-school games.

The game is possible and beneficial for every boy or girl of school age, and will develop and unfold into added enjoyment after the school life has become only a memory. It is a life-long game.

AMUSEMENTS

Gimme! Gimme! Gimme! Have You Got Them?

Rupert Hughes, the man who has made motion pictures human—made them reflect real human beings acting as naturally as your own family and your next door neighbors—goes blithely on his way of interpreting modern American life to picturegoers. What could be more home-like, modern and American in subject than the financial dependence of a great majority of American women upon their husbands, even for pocket money, and the never-ending stream of "gimmies" to which the husbands who do not give their wives allowances must listen?

Rupert Hughes has dramatized the comedy and drama of these millions of American wives in his latest Goldwyn picture entitled, by genuine inspiration, "Gimme," which was shown for the first time at the Lyceum yesterday and will be repeated again tonight.

King Tut's History Revealed in "Loves of Pharaoh" at Lyceum
Ernest Lubitsch, the famous European motion picture producer has a way of making you want to read the encyclopedia and books on history. Wherever his massive picture, "Passion," was shown, librarians report a big demand for books on the French revolution.

"Deception" made more people take an interest in Henry the Eighth and Ann Boleyn than any other single work since those two worthies passed into history.

Now this European Griffith has produced as his most massive picture a spectacular romance of ancient Egypt and librarians are expecting calls for informative and entertaining reading matter about the land of King Tut and the sphinx.

"The Loves of Pharaoh," which comes to the Lyceum theatre Friday and Saturday is described as his most magnificent picture.

The costumes worn by Dorothy Mackall in the Edwin Carewe First National release, "Mighty Lak' a Rose," at the New Park last time tonight, afford striking contrast. From the poorest and shabbiest of little dresses to the most exquisite gowns is the order. In the first scenes of the picture she appears garbed as a little orphan girl in the dun colored frocks of a nondescript character and skimp as to material. These frocks were carefully planned and made by Dorothy and her mother, thus giving a home-made appearance that could not be found in the cheapest ready-made dresses.

Gorgeous apple green charmeuse worn by Dorothy later in the picture, reveals the real beauty of the actress. Elaborately filigreed with silver and crystal and caught over the right shoulder with a wreath of delicately hued silk flowers, it is a tribute to the dressmaking art. It is of the regal type of gown most popular during the days of Queen Elizabeth, yet in the execution of detail it strikes a strictly modern note. With this gown Dorothy wears silver evening slippers. The green material matches the artist's eyes and enhances their depth. With her hair worn high and a $30,000 evening cape of chinchilla, Dorothy is as entrancing to the eye as a gorgeous butterfly just emerged from a drab cocoon.

PRESSURE ON LUNGS CAUSED BY GAS

Often a dull, full feeling in chest is caused by gas from undigested food pressing upwards towards lungs. Sometimes gas presses on heart and is mistaken for heart trouble. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, expels gas and stops pressure almost INSTANTLY in many cases. Removes surprising matter from BOTH upper and lower bowel which formed gas and poisoned stomach. Adlerika is EXCELLENT to guard against appendicitis. Johnson's Pharmacy.
